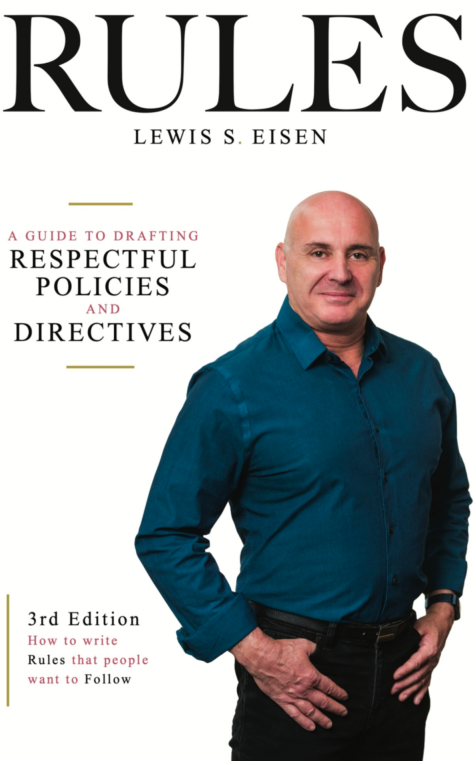
Lewis S. Eisen, J.D., C.I.P.



is the author of the international bestseller How to Write Rules that People Want to Follow: A Guide to Drafting Respectful Policies and Directives. His approach to drafting policy has been adopted by groups at organizations across the US, Canada, and the UK.

Over his lengthy career he has been a practising lawyer, a technology consultant, and a policy writer in the federal government. He has been providing professional training seminars and workshops for 40 years, and is currently a member of the Faculty of the Professional Education Group based out of Minnesota, a provider of Continuing Education Programs since 1981.

Lewis has written half a dozen books and dozens of articles for journals and newspapers. He speaks frequently at venues across the United States and Canada, and is the winner of the 2020 Britt Literary Award from ARMA International.

Web: lewiseisen.com
LinkedIn: https://www.linkedin.com/in/lewiseisen/
Twitter/Instagram: @lewiseisen

LEWIS EISEN